SEOUL FOREST GUIDE MAP

SEOUL FOREST

Seoul Forest, which sits at the confluence of the Hangang River and the Jungnangcheon Stream, serves as an important green space in the midst of the city's circular ecology from the Hangang River, Yongsan and Namsan Mountain to the Cheonggyecheon Stream and back. Historically, the forest used to be frequented by the king as his hunting ground. In modern times, it served as the river source for the city's first waterworks (installed in 1908), and was also used as a horse race-track and a golf course. Now, Seoul Forest has become a green urban landmark as a natural forest of life created by citizens where nature and culture come together.
